Wahnipitae First Nation's 1st Annual Christmas Parade

There were 4 entries in Wahnipitae First Nations's 1st Annual Christmas Parade. Post Creek Store came in first place. The Recollect's came in 2nd, Evelyn & Phil came in 3rd and last but not least Debby and Nicholas Burke came in 4th.

I did not get to personally watch the parade but heard all the raves and good reviews from the community at the pot luck feast. What a great time to come together and show some Christmas spirit. This parade will go down in history and we need to thank Councilor Henry Burke for making it all happen. Thank you to the entrants, you were just awesome! I can just imagine next years parade.....you have a whole year to work on it.

I would also like to thank Chief Tyson for his monetary donation to enable a fourth place prize.

FRY BREAD

The old tribal chairman was on his death bed. He had only hours to live when he suddenly smelled the scent of fry-bread wafting into his room. Aahhhh. . . He loved fry-bread more than anything else in the world.

With his last bit of energy, he pulled himself out of bed. . . Down the stairs and into the kitchen he went. There was his beloved wife, Lillian, kneading the dough for a new batch. As he reached for one of the fresh steaming fry-breads, he got smacked across the back of his hand by the wooden spoon his wife was holding. "Leave them alone!" she said. "They're for the funeral!"

Congregate Dining Christmas Party Update

There was a good turn out for the Seniors Christmas Party on December 16, 2009. We enjoyed spaghetti, warm bread & cheesecake. There was gift exchange which was made interesting by playing the game 'Steal the Present'. Thanks to the seniors for your good company. I am looking forward to spending more time with you in 2010.

Wishing you all the best in the year ahead!

Battle of the Bulge

Do you have a new years resolution? Well I will let you in on my resolution. I want to be healthier and by that I need to beat the battle of the bulge. So here I go again, back to weight watchers.

Back to reading labels, eating healthy and taking interest in my own self. After trying 3 years ago I lost 40 lbs. but fell off the wagon and gained it all back. Why is it so easy to lose your balance and fall off and when we try to get back on that wagon it becomes a real battle. Sounds like an addiction like any other to me. Instead of reading labels, doing some number crunches, etc; we tend to take the quick fix like grabbing a piece of cake, cookies, candies, chips and its just to fill a void so we can concentrate on something else that we think is more important than ourselves. If we would only take the time to listen to what our bodies are trying to tell us and realize that without our health, how can we be good to anyone else. Sounds simple but the battle has begun but once again.

Wish me luck!

Walking the Winter Blues Away

Roland Dutrisac, Public Health Nurse

Although walking as a form of physical activity is more common during the warmer months, it can be enjoyed year-round. And, staying active all year long is important for your health. Walking provides many health benefits such as relieving stress and tension, and reducing fatigue. Here are some tips to keep in mind when walking outdoors during the winter:

- Layer your clothing - as your body gets warmer, you can easily remove layers.

- Keep your ears, head, and fingers covered to avoid frost bite.
  - Wear proper footwear - preferably boots that provide a firm grip.
  - Add cleats or "picks" to it to grip the ice.
  - Try using ski poles to help balance yourself.
  - Walk with a friend.
- If walking outside is not for you, consider walking indoors - where you can stay warm and dry. Many malls have free walking programs, and if you live in an apartment building, you can walk the halls.
- Regardless of where you decide to walk this winter, the important thing to remember is to keep walking and have fun.
- Remember to always check with a health care professional before starting any new physical activity program.

'Tis the Season .... For Asthma

Does your child's asthma seem to get worse on those cold and blustery days? How about when nestled up beside the fire or trimming the holiday tree?

Asthma triggers don't take a holiday in the winter season. In fact, many of the activities we enjoy during the winter can cause problems for those with asthma. That doesn't mean you can't do some of these same activities..you may just need to make a few easy modifications.

Follow these tips to keep asthma in control this winter:

- Ensure that your child has a scarf or neck warmer covering their mouth and nose. This will help to add warmth and moisture to cold dry air that can trigger asthma.
- Smoke from a candle or wood-burning fire can also trigger asthma. Opt for a gas fireplace or heater to keep you warm on cold nights.
- Be aware of strong smells from candles, potpourri and other decorations.
- When entertaining, use serving utensils for bowls of nuts and candy to help prevent the spread of colds and flu bugs.
- And, as always, wash hands frequently!

Alzheimer's Disease

10 Warning Signs

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, degenerative disease. Symptoms include loss of memory, difficulty with day-to-day tasks, and changes in mood and behaviour. People may think these symptoms are part of normal aging but they aren't. It is important to see a doctor when you notice any of these symptoms as they may be due to other conditions such as depression, drug interactions or an infection. If the diagnosis is Alzheimer's disease, your local Alzheimer Society can help.

To help you know what warning signs to look for, the Alzheimer Society has developed the following list:

1. Memory loss that affects day-to-day function

It's normal to occasionally forget appointments, colleagues' names or a friend's phone number and remember them later. A person with Alzheimer's disease may forget things more often and not remember them later, especially things that have happened more recently.

2. Difficulty performing familiar tasks

Busy people can be so distracted from time to time that they may leave the carrots on the stove and only remember to serve them at the end of a meal. A person with Alzheimer's disease may have trouble with tasks that have been familiar to them all their lives, such as preparing a meal.

3. Problems with language

Everyone has trouble finding the right word sometimes, but a person with Alzheimer's disease may forget simple words or substitute words, making her sentences difficult to understand.

4. Disorientation of time and place

It's normal to forget the day of the week or your destination -- for a moment. But a person with Alzheimer's disease can become lost on their own street, not knowing how they got there or how to get home.

5. Poor or decreased judgment

People may sometimes put off going to a doctor if they have an infection, but eventually seek medical attention. A person with Alzheimer's disease may have decreased judgment, for example not recognizing a medical problem that needs attention or wearing heavy clothing on a hot day.

6. Problems with abstract thinking

From time to time, people may have difficulty with tasks that require abstract thinking, such as balancing a cheque book. Someone with Alzheimer's disease may have significant difficulties with such tasks, for example not recognizing what the numbers in the cheque book mean.

7. Misplacing things

Anyone can temporarily misplace a wallet or keys. A person with Alzheimer's disease may put things in inappropriate places: an iron in the freezer or a wristwatch in the sugar bowl.

8. Changes in mood and behavior

Everyone becomes sad or moody from time to time. Someone with Alzheimer's disease can exhibit varied mood swings -- from calm to tears to anger -- for no apparent reason.

9. Changes in personality

People's personalities can change somewhat with age. But a person with Alzheimer's disease can become confused, suspicious or withdrawn. Changes may also include apathy, fearfulness or acting out of character.

10. Loss of initiative

It's normal to tire of housework, business activities or social obligations, but most people regain their initiative. A person with Alzheimer's disease may become very passive, and require cues and prompting to become involved.

PREPARING TO QUIT

Below are a few tips to help you prepare for your quit day:

1. Make a list of all the reasons you want to quit.

For example, it might be for your health, appearance and the cost of smoking. Let these reasons keep you motivated, especially during more difficult times when you experience cravings.

2. Set a quit date.

Give some thought to where you will be and what you'll be facing at the time. Select a day that will be relatively routine. Set yourself up for success!

3. Know how you will handle withdrawal, your urges to smoke and trigger situations.

Investigate quit methods and choose what you will use before your quit date. Figure out how you will handle cravings and temptations to smoke. Think ahead!

4. Think about removing tobacco slowly from your life prior to your quit date.

For example, stop smoking in your home or vehicle, delay your morning cigarette, avoid smoking in your favourite chair or room. Take charge!

COLD WINTER!

The Blackfeet asked their Chief in autumn, if the winter was going to be cold or not. Not really knowing the answer, the chief replies that the winter was going to be cold and that the members of the village were to collect wood to be prepared. Being a good leader, he then went to the nearest phone booth and called the National Weather Service and asked, "Is this winter to be cold?" The man on the phone responded, "This winter was going to be quite cold indeed." So the Chief went back to speed up his people to collect even more wood to be prepared. A week later he called the National Weather Service again, "Is it going to be a very cold winter?""Yes," the man replied, "its going to be a very cold winter." So the Chief goes back to his people and orders them to go and find every scrap of wood they can find. Two weeks later he calls the National Weather Service again and asks "Are you absolutely sure, that the winter is going to be very cold?""Absolutely" the man replies, "the Blackfeet are collecting wood like crazy!"
